What it means to give

Do you know what charity is?

Charity involves giving money, goods or time and talents to those who need it.

There are different ways to give.

Here is your challenge!

You just earned some money walking the neighbor's dog, and you still have birthday money left. Where should it go?

Try using  to keep things organized!

Label one  SPEND for  you want to use right away, another  SAVE for something big you want in the future, and the last  GIVE for  you want to  with others.

When you  with someone, it feels really special!

When you help others, it makes the  a better place.

The next time you get , split it between the  and you'll always have some for you, and some to  !

Teaching the basics

Lessons don't just happen in the classroom—especially when it comes to financial literacy.

You can start teaching your child money basics at home.

If you're unsure when to start talking with your child about money, that's okay! You can start at any age with the three principles: SPEND, SAVE, GIVE.

Read different ways you can teach your child about each of these principles:
